Monthly will be called after October. Sometime in September an Italian Congress on Copyright will be held in Milan. It is the second Congress called for that purpose, and it is said that at the first one Italian authors accomplished much toward harmony of views and an organized effort to

General William Birney, of Washington City, is preparing a work on the life and times of James G. Birney, or the rise, growth and success of the anti-slavery movement in the United States. He requests all persons having in their possession let ers from James C. Birney, or auti-slavery papers or pamphlets published between 1831 and 1845, to write him

M. Lefcadio Hearn, a journalist of New-Orleans, has translated several of Theophile Gautier's fan-tastic and archæological stories, which J.Worthing-ton will publish with the title of the leading story, "One of Cleopatra's Nights," the French title being "Une Nuit de Cleopatre." Other stories in the volume are "Clarimonde," a new title given to "Une Morte Amoureuse"; "Arria Marcella: A Souvenir of Pompeii "; "The Mummy's Foot"; "Omphale: A Rococo Story," and "King Candaules."

Fiction, a new weekly publication devoted to original serial stories, novelettes and short stories, made its first appearance on Monday last, and is assued by Kepler & Schwarzman, the publisher of Puck. If the first number of Fiction fairly indicates its literary standard and purpose, it occupies, in its different field, a plane far below Puck. The demand for good short stories by American writers is far ahead of the supply, and the announceme of a publication devoted solely to stories has awakened doubts among members of the craft as to the possibility of keeping a weekly publication of that kind up to a good average mark of merit. The first number of Fiction settles the question, so far as its initial standard is concerned. The supplies of material at its command will be limited only by the physical strength to wield a pen of a large and

A LITERARY COINCIDENCE.

To the Editor of The Tribune. Sir: In your paper of August 23, under "New Publications," there occurs an extract from "Patty's Perversities," (Round Robin Series) as follows:

"Don't names," Floasy asked pensively, "always convey a color to your mind, Mr. Blood t"
"Convey color!"
"Yes, like Caroline, you know; that always makes me think of pale yellow, and Susan of red, and Mary of blue."

"What nonsense!" laughed her cousin; "what color would Bathalena suggest?" "That name" said Flossy, "always calls up a grayish dirty green, like faded linsey-woolsey," and at that mo-ment the dinner bell rang."

In The Broome Republican, published in this city, in the number dated March 5, 1862, vol. 40, appears an original story, entitled "Nora Gilbert," by "Azile." In the fourth column of the first page of this number of the paper, and in the fourth chapter of the story, occurs the following conversation. I give only that part which relates to the subject alluded to in the extract from "Patty's Perversi-

"I do not understand you."

"I do not understand you."

"I do not understand you."

"When you think of a name, when you see it with your minde's eye, how does it look! What hue does it wear, black, blue, or green!"

"They do not present any that I know of."

"How strange!" said Nora. "What is it, a mental peculiarity! From a child, names have ever appeared to me arrayed, in varied colors, each name or class of names wearing its own peculiar hue."

"I should like some examples," said Mr. Clifton.

"Let me see," said Nora. "Caroline, for instance, is a golden name—it is made of sunbeams. So is William. Fanny is a pretty rose-cofored name. James is an ugly brick red. Charles is a delicate crimson. Louise is a beautiful blue. Rebecca is brown. Mary is violet-hued. Sasie is a pale green and emeraid; but the full name, Susan, or Susannah, is not near so pretty, being of a dark, dingy green."

In the next number of the paper more is said on the same subject. I write this letter and desire its publication in justice to the writer of "Nora Gilbert," who is now my wife, so that when she collects her stories, as she intends to do, and publishes them in book form, it cannot be said she copied from Patty's Perversities." Very truly yours,
Binghamton, N. Y.. Aug. 26, 1881. A. B.

> SEVEN YEARS OLD. From The Athenaum.

Seven white roses on one tree, Seven white loaves of blameless leaven, Seven white sails on one soft sea.
Seven white sails on one soft sea.
Seven white swans on one lake's lee,
Seven white flowerlike stars in heaven,
All are types unmeet to be
For a birthday's crown of seven.

Not the radiance of the roses,
Not the blessing of the bread,
Not the breeze that ere day grows is
Fresh for sails and swans, and closes
Wings above the sun's grave spread,
When the starshine on the snows is
Sweet as sleep on sorrow shed.

Nothing sweetest, nothing best, Holds so good and sweet a treasure As the love wherewith once blest Joy grows holy, grief takes rest, Life, half tired with hours to measure, Fills his eyes and lips and breast With most light and breath of pleasure:

As the rapture unpolluted,
As the passion undefiled,
By whose force all pains heart-rooted
Are transfigured and transmuted,
Recompensed and reconciled,
Through the imperial, undisputed,
Present godhead of a child.

V.

Brown bright eyes and fair bright head,
Worth a worthier crown than this is,
Worth a worthier song instead,
Sweet grave wise round mouth, full fed
With the joy of love, whose bliss is
More than mortal wine and bread,
Lips whose words are sweet as kisses.

Little hands so glad of giving,
Little heart so glad of love,
Little soul so glad of love,
Little soul so glad of living,
While the strong swift hours are weaving
Light with darkness woven above,
Time for mirth and time for grieving,
Plume of raven and plume of dove,

VII.

I can give you but a word
Warm with love therein for leaven,
But a song that falls unheard
Yet on ears of sense unstirred
Yet by song so far from heaven,
Whence you came the brightest bird,
Seven years since, of seven times seven.
A. C. SWINBURNE.

A Battle Mountain, Nev., special says: "The accident to the air compresser at the Starr-Grove mine, which made necessary the laying off of part of the force for a few days, did not interfere with the working of both mills, as sufficient ore to keep them going for a con-le of weeks was out and ready for reduction. The full force is at work again. Drifts Nos, 1 and 2 south are looking very well, and are yielding ore of an extra quality. The new incline is advancing linely and will soon be down on the ledge a considerable distance. It is being well timbered and put in splenid shape, as it is sunk so that no trouble need be experienced in this quarter h-reafter. The other levels and drifts are also looking well and continue in good ore.

"At the Highland Chief mine the new machinery continues to arrive and is being put in place as fast as possible. Work in the incline shaft goes ahead as usual, and the ore encountered resembles that in the Starr-Grove. The track in the tunnel runs smoothly, and the work of extracting ore can now be pushed without delay. A new road has been cut from near the ore-house of the Starr-Grove to the mouth of the tunnel at the Highland Chief, and timbers, fuel and supplies can now be laid down at the latter mine at much less expense than formerly. Manager Bothwell is on the ground daily and superintends all work.

COPPER, ZINC, SILVER.—Valuable mining properties for sale. Inquire of A. B. RICHARDSON, 1 Water-st., N. Y. In consideration of the rich developments of high grade ore in the Iron Bonnet Mines, it is decided to withdraw for the present the sale of treasury stock as the price heretofore advertised. The regularity, extent, and richness of the ore now being extracted from each of the Nos. 1,2 and 3 inclines demonstrate that the Iron Bonnet Group are intrinsically valuable. At an early date the stock will be listed on the New-York and Boston Mining Boards. Office 21 Nassau-st.

bers, the land supplies can now be laid down at the latter mine at much less expense than formerly. Manager Bothwell is on the ground daily and superintends all work.

"In the upper tunnel of the Chloride mine a distance of 27 feet was run during the past six days, all in ore, which is of high grade. The winze to connect the lower tunnels was run about 16 feet, through very hard ground. he face of each of the lower tunnels looks very encouraging. A large force is kept at work in this mine, which is opening out in a very promising manner."

Green Mountain superintendent reports that the sullphuret ledge still holds its large size, and that it prospects evenly in free gold the full width. It has been cut into 20 feet, and looks strong in the face. A stope will soon be raised. A drift is being run from the Blake stope, west, to cut a chute of ore in the white ledge that was worked from the upper works. A raise has been started in the main ore-body in No. 5 level, to connect with the winze in No. 4. This will open up a targe extent of the main ore-body. The milks are running regularly.

Standard Consolidated official report, August 20, shows that the east crosscut, 1,000 level, is in 379 feet. The south drift from the east crosscut is in 76 feet in favorable formation. The total length of the south drift, 500 level, is 116 feet; still in very hard rock. Upraise No. 2 from the south drift, 500 level, is 116 feet; still in very hard rock. Upraise No. 2 from the south drift, 500 level, is 119 get wide. South drift No. 2, 385 level, is on 123 feet; the vein in the stopes above the 385 level north is about 20 feet wide on an average.
